Evidence of Proficiency (the Proficiency Chart)

This chart provides evidence of having met all of the expectations for UNST 3910: Self & Organizations. It is the final assignment of the course.

A. Proficiencies for UNST 3910: Self & Organizations	Hyperlink Evidence from this class in each box below. In 2-3 sentences, tell how your linked piece of evidence matches the Proficiency.
Engage. Make meaning of your internship experience through deep reflection, and leverage your sense of meaning to support professional growth. Evidence of this may include writing, speaking, or creating a project. When at all possible, be visible on screen and off.	I'm currently doing a project on using algorithms and machine learning to help the new start-ups match the venture capital that is most likely going to invest in them. This is meaningful for me and for lots of people
Create a Seminar. Schedule, develop and present at least one topical seminar that demonstrates reflective practice, and participate with presence in other students' presentations. Through this work, provide evidence of gaining a deeper understanding of goals, interests, values, and strengths.
Reflect. Reflect upon extensive aspects of internship interactions, including but not limited to, hands-on engagement, management, and strategies necessary to meet the needs of diverse collaborators. Within your reflection, explore career pathways and envision and create plans to guide life and career decisions.	I've learned a lot about the industry. This is a valuable experience as my supervisor was a previous professor. I could ask him lots of things about students and life.
Develop Dispositions. Developing dispositions includes fostering a collaborative and growth mindset. Be actively engaged in all aspects of field work and in this course - including through class assignments - and display professional dispositions at all times. Be on time and present in every aspect, and collaborate with supervisors, teachers, colleagues and peers in an openly respectful manner. This includes participation, attendance, and communication.	I've been on track except for the website. It's the first time for me to construct this website, so I can't fully perform what's required and I need time.
